as we reach the end of a major epoch in our lives, it is only natural that we pause to reflect on what has been and to conjecture on what might be. in the perhaps vain hope that what we have done will be of interest to others and significant to us, we unfold on the following pages in word and picture a brief narrative of the many dreams, experiences, and accomplishments of all of us. these vignettes from our past have been amassed in this yearbook—or more properly, our lifebook—in a format patterned after the chronology of the lives concerned. thus you'll see that we have started at our beginnings and progressed through the book narratively until today. the pattern may be confusing and involved—but so is life, and the mirror must reflect the image. this, then, is our story; and yet it is also the story of many hundreds of parents, teachers, and friends to whom we have dedicated these annals, for they have played an integral role in developing the chronicle about to be unfolded. if but one of those who have devoted their lives to us is able to share a smile, recall a fond memory, or relive a dream as they amble down memory's bypaths with us, as we review the story they have written, we will know the lives were worth the living and the story, the relating.

in appreciation

as we retrace the many and varied paths that have led us to the threshold of maturity, we are proud to have with us as our model, a man who has helped many hundreds before us over the same paths, around the same pitfalls. while we gratefully acknowledge in these pages the wisdom and devotion of the many parents and teachers without whose counsel and direction none of what we have achieved would have been, we are particularly indebted to one man who has served us and our parents before us, selflessly and untiringly. it is our sincere prayer that god will bless forty more classes with his unfailing leadership and that the man to whom we humbly dedicate our class, our graduation, and our yearbook will remember the class of 1961 as fondly as we will remember him — thomas a. lyons.

when we were merely bouncin babes and everything was new we thought the world was full of such delightful things to do from kicking up a ruckus just to make a little noise to holding summit meetings with other girls and boys we'd talk about the problems that one has when one is young the meetings were top secret so we spoke our secret tongue but we were happy on the whole for life had much to give we hadn't learned of bombs and war we weren't afraid to live oh what a lovely time we had from ages one through five playing games the whole day long twas great to be alive but nothing lasts forever such is life's established rule when we were six we started off to elementary school school was an experience that we liked pretty well learning how to read and write and being taught to spell we remember all our friends the boys and girls we met when we got a" in rithmetic they called us teacher's pet and so we studied played and grew as any children will until we got to junior high and wasn't that a thrill at junior high another world was opening before us life was a whirl with all those clubs from camera club to chorus since subjects were much tougher marks could be a source of pride school became a challenge and we took it in our stride at last we came to weymouth high and found a rugged pace the hours spent in study with a book before our face twas english art and algebra just every sort of class with homework piled on homework till we thought we'd never pass a good administration means a good the ideal administration is human enough to gain the friendship of the students and authoritative enough to command their respect. the administration here at weymouth high completely fills this description. the great number of students who have had the opportunity to meet our principal, mr. whittle, know him to be a very congenial person, and one whom students automatically respect. under mr. whittle's leadership the administration of weymouth high has achieved a level of quality of which all of us may well be proud.

mr. parker, principal w.v.s.; mr. lyons and mr. kelly, assistant principals.

many an hour in language lab we've all spent in parlay-ing into a small black mike and wondering just what we're saying in junior year came chemistry with lab work once a week the odors we concocted could have made the whole school reek there's physics for the seniors and languages for all and headaches for the teachers with their backs against the wall though we may have regretted it often, many of us elected the college course at w.h.s.; fortunately, we persevered and will soon be put to the test as we head for campuses all over the country. as sophomores, most of us followed the standard program based on english, geometry, french, and latin, but then elected courses to fit our future plans.

some took the advanced mathematics program, studying frantically both trig and second-year algebra in our junior year to prepare for the rigors of college calculus. others went on to advanced studies in art and design or languages. all of us took the sciences in stride, puzzling over ripple tanks and retorts with equal fervor. between research papers and reading requirements in english courses, we established a lasting familiarity with most of the libraries in the area and, hopefully, improved our facility with the mother tongue. history classes revealed what others have done and inspired us to look to the future. college, here we come!

the herd

kick, corinne,

fight, maroon and gold!

if you were to ask any weymouth high student what is the best way to spend sixth period, he would probably reply, "the football rally." on a crisp, bright day in early autumn the student body gathered on weymouth high's amphitheater to cheer the new football team on to victory for the coming season. the cheerleaders, majorettes, and students combined into one voice to send our boys off to the games with a magnificent flourish. however our team fared, they would always remember the enthusiasm with which their classmates greeted them.

give me an "h"!

a certain set of very attractive girls from our school led to the posting of the following sign outside the gates of legion field:

danger! warning: any person caught watching the weymouth high drum majorettes will immediately be required to forfeit his attention!

dressed in fancy uniforms decorated with school colors, these high-stepping girls could be found stealing people's attention during the half at weymouth high football games. Led by corinne brackett and martha smith, they strutted in formation across the gridiron, performing their intricate routines. long may they strut!

w-e-y-m-o-u-t-h

look at them marching proudly across legion field in their bright maroon and gold uniforms! listen to them play! can't you feel your feet tapping as their unwavering enthusiasm spreads through the audience? music surely stirs the soul, and as long as the band plays on, school spirit will be strong.

have you ever dreamed of appearing on "broadway" or television, the spotlight upon you, bringing others enjoyment as well as enjoying yourself? a good substitute for such is being a weymouth high cheerleader as she struts across the field in time with the band, head held high, proud to lead the crowds in rousing cheers.

"weymouth's our alma mater!" cries dotty breen while conducting these peppy gals who are shouting, "fight, team, fight!"

dressed in our school colors, spelling out our school name, they are always heard yelling for both football and basketball teams.

let's hear a cheer from the bleachers! you can't help but be an enthusiastic spectator. school spirit never dies! give a cheer for weymouth!

directed by miss levangie, the girls are enrolled in the national cheerleaders' association.

"y ea weymouth!"go! go! go! rang the cheers of the thousands of enthusiasts who flocked to see the maroons compete on the gridiron.

r ain or shine, the boys who made up the 1960 football team endeavored to become adept in the skills of the game.

o n the field, by applying the techniques taught them by coach jack fisher, they were able to go on to victory.

t hough these boys tasted victory only once during the season, the skills and good sportsmanship which they have developed will be of great merit in their future lives.

c ongratulations go to brian dunbar.

i nvincible though they were not—

v ive the 1960 football team, for they have shown persistence, endurance, and a great fighting spirit. now, read up, taking the first letter of each paragraph, and you will see for what weymouth high's 1960 football team through their practice and efforts have paved the way.

weymouth keeps your car on the go!

whether building a house, investigating a carburetor, hammering a sheet of metal, setting type, or constructing an end table, we at the vocational school have put in three years of hard work in preparation for our chosen trades. in the print shop we have gained valuable experience working on publications like the campus and reflector. in the sheet metal shops we have been prepared to enter the nation's leading metal industries. the trend in the american furniture industry will depend to a great extent, in the future, on those of us who have taken the cabinet making course. those in the auto repair shops can unfold the intricacies of an automobile in much the same way a geometry student can rattle off the pythagorean theorem. in the carpentry course we have become proficient in our trade by buiding a house.

through these excellent courses we are ready, willing, and most important, able, to lead the ranks of the nation's skilled tradesmen.

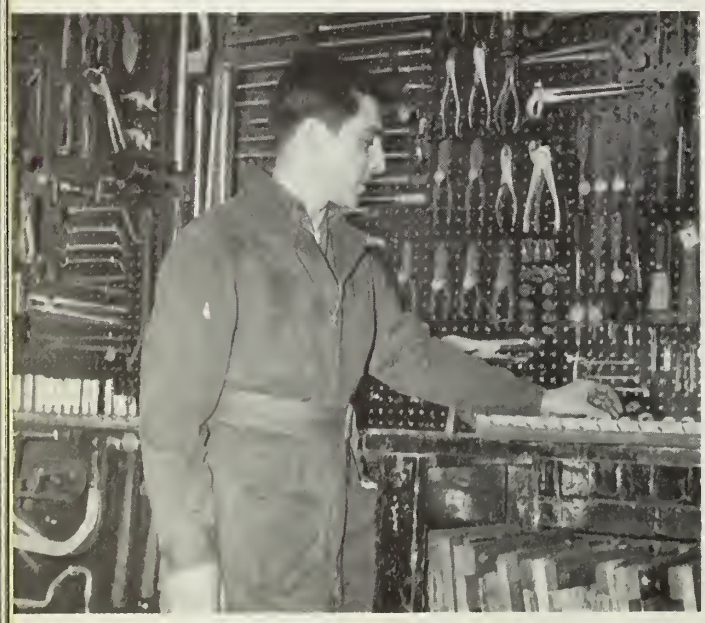
2 frank h. meda, auto repair: general motors training center, carter carburetion schools, rochester carburetion schools, allen equipment school, chevrolet service manager schools.



1 "you think i. b. m. is complicated!"

2 "greased— mr. smith; spare tire—mrs. jones."

"taught to the tune of the hickory stick."
joseph k. whittemore, english, social studies: boston university, bridgewater state teachers college, fitchburg state teachers college.

the daily grind
henry e. marshman.

sing along with weymouth

"music hath charms to soothe the savage students," and our chorus has done just that. though their "corridor" voices are boisterous, to say the least, once behind those auditorium doors, with mr. jack and mr. warren at the helm, melody resounds from the halls of weymouth high.

proceeds from covered-dish suppers, hot dog stands at football games, and tag days not only attest to the versatility of this group but also provide money for the purchase of choir robes and music.

an international flavor is added to the group as they represent weymouth at various state-wide festivals, the new england festival, and the all state.

"remember this place?"

"we never did this when we were in school!"

"just the book i've been looking for."

an attentive audience

herberta l. stockwell, school nurse: massachusetts memorial hospital school of nursing, boston university, bridgewater state teachers college, harvard school of public health; future nurses' club.

with hypodermic needles aimed, the girls in weymouth's future nurses club will be entering the wards of the nation's hospitals in a few years.

for the present, their practical work is carried out through volunteer programs with the bloodmobile and x-ray units.

besides having regular meetings, often highlighted with interesting speakers, the girls visit various hospitals and sponsor a scholarship for a three-year member of the club.

thanks to the audio-visual club, the television industry won't be lacking in all-important technicians for quite a few years.

the students in the club serve the school as projectionists and study repairs and new techniques at meetings.

the members also take trips which give them the opportunity to see a-v equipment in use outside the school and thus to serve weymouth high more competently.

weymouth high's congress they say money is the root of all evil. don't you believe it!

our student council has had a very prosperous year. one of their most successful projects was the book fair, which offered an extraordinary variety of paper-covered books to the students and faculty. also highly successful was the salvation army drive. in addition, the council has conducted dances, raised money toward a scholarship fund, supported student organizations, and promoted projects such as school stationery, lunch room supervision, and buses to away football games. what is their aim? simply that all students feel they have personally been a part of their activities.

"is that the good part?"

we may not all end up in the boss's lap or even in the lap of luxury, but thanks to the excellent and varied training those of us who elected the business course received, we sally forth into the hectic world of business, brimming with confidence. from bookkeeping to business law, from shorthand to spanish, from typing to training in distributive education, we are prepared to make our way in the business world. a variety of corporations, banks, and civil positions are due for a turn for the better as over one hundred of us begin our careers as bookkeepers, typists, and stenographers, well fortified by an intensive and comprehensive education in all the facets of the business world through courses calculated to prepare us fully for the demands of our chosen vocations.

slow and steady wins the race from november to february is winter track season at weymouth high. under the direction of coach oral page, assistant coaches malcolm pratt and frank cavallo, and manager mark dowds, the boys participate in many events; for example, the 50-yard dash, the 300-yard dash, the running high jump, the shot put, and the relay race.

the members graduating this year are bruce hanson, clyde hix, and malcolm macgregor.

this year's season might have been better if it had not been for double sessions and the lack of seniors on the team. several juniors, however, show promise of giving weymouth a banner season next year. these include fred lawrence, a very good runner and excellent anchor man; chuck craig, whose specialties are the high jump and the hurdles; and ralph haddix and don meacham, who excel in relay racing.

bottoms up!

faster than a speeding bullet! is it superman? no, it's the weymouth high cross country team! there are don meacham and charlie delorey in the lead! will they win? no, it's fred lawrence and he's going to match randolph's course record!

the squad, consisting entirely of juniors, placed sixth in the south shore meet and eighth in the state meet at boston. coach oral page and assistant coaches malcolm pratt and frank cavallo are looking forward to an even better season with these boys next year.

old accountants never die, they just lose their balance. the future business leaders of america will be facing a world of business problems which from day to day are becoming so complex that these future leaders must equip themselves with a vast knowledge that will enable them to meet the numerous challenges.

the members of the future business leaders of america participate in activities that expose them to the business world and develop their awareness of the necessity of preparing themselves for it. the club has visited the john hancock life insurance company and various business schools in boston. they have also had guest speakers from the airlines and from john robert powers' modeling school.

under the guidance of miss dorothy macgregor and the officers, the members, by applying themselves, will be able to attain the goal the name of the club implies; they will become the business leaders of tomorrow.

campus staff

remember this!

"this can't possibly be the same group that produced the 1961 campus!" the room in which the campus staff works from september to march appears to be in a constant state of chaos. the chattering and commotion which fills the air is misleading. obviously not resolved with the motto "all work, no play", the bustling staff creates an interesting and unusual yearbook of which the entire school may be proud. the literary staff, in conjunction with the art staff, decides upon a theme, compiles and writes all information and material, and assembles a facsimile to a 1961 campus.

the fact that 35 or 40 completely unqualified, inexperienced seniors selected by some as yet undetermined method have converted two tons of paper, gallons of ink, trays of type, hundreds of photographs, and thousands of words into something seemingly resembling a yearbook is miraculous in itself. even more miraculous is the fact that both advisers and staff members have survived, and all our bills are paid (we hope).

"look! don't tell me i'm wrong!"

basket, basket, basket, boys!

don't judge a book by its cover, and don't judge weymouth high's basketball team by its win-loss record. this year's team was made up of many fine players who put a tremendous amount of effort into their games and practices. several games were lost by only a slim margin, and with a little luck and fewer injuries, we could have easily compiled a five-hundred percentage.

despite the heart-breaking season just past, weymouth's future looks bright. coach kearns tells us there are many players coming up from the ranks of junior high who show great promise and the sophomores had a very successful season this year.

skate, skid, and score!

"we only needed one more point to take part in the tournament playoffs," states hockey captain tim handrahan.

the last two games were thrillers! against league-leading williams weymouth came from behind twice to gain a 3-3 tie. weymouth lost a heart breaker against hingham 1-0 in the final minute!

in the first line tom costa was recognized as one of the fastest in the league, and john mclellan gained the respect of all with his extremely aggressive play.

hugh massey, second line, was the high scorer due to his speed and hard, accurate shot.

defensemen pete newton and dave macleod gave the team two steady, experienced performers.

the opponents scored less than two goals per game, proving that both defensemen and goalies did outstanding jobs, posting more wins than losses.

the mighty men of weymouth there's a pounding of feet on old mother earth's face—spring track is springing all over the place.

our boys have been earnestly practicing for the state and new england meets, which are the highlights of the season. among the seniors deserving praise for their performances are george jung—discus; john bates and aubrey elms—javelin; robert ralph—880 yard; and bruce hanson—mile.

some juniors worthy of note are brian kemp and ralph stewart—pole vault; charles craig—high jump; charles macmurray—220 yard; ralph haddex—440 yard; frederick lawrence—880 yard.

"1 . . . 2 . . . 3 . . . you're pinned!" yes, wrestling has returned to weymouth high. this year, coached by leo hayes, a weymouth high wrestling team entered organized competition for the first time in eighteen years. in spite of the fact that all its opponents were better established, the team won two of its six matches, with each man winning at least one single match.

although we are sorry to lose good wrestlers like richard gilbert, the future looks bright with such juniors as herb stowe and david serafini returning.

william t. kearns, social studies department head: boston college, bridgewater state teachers college, syracuse, harvard, boston university; senior prom, legion oratorical contest, student exchange program, good government day program.

on a thursday morning in february, hundreds of english students attentively listened to the knocking knees of the eight finalists in the annual oratorical contest.

the contestants, who had been coached by mr. william t. kearns, delivered essays based on some phase of the constitution of the united states. despite little variation in the quality of the speeches, the judges finally selected jane m. belcher and jean e. swanson as the winners, to be presented with fifty dollar savings bonds by the weymouth american legion posts at graduation.

"resolved that the united nations should be significantly strengthened." with this topic, the members of the debate club have been engaged in verbal battles with north quincy, our lady's of newton, and archbishop williams, our arch-rival high schools.

the club is a member of the massachusetts secondary school debate league and has competed in state-wide debates at clark university and stonehill college.

a special trip to united nations headquarters in new york helped the club members gain additional information concerning their topic.

the club also sponsored a mock election in november with the result that students at weymouth high showed a good indication of national trends.

key to the future

we have a "key" that will open any door! the qualities of leadership and service are the chief compounds of the "key" that will stand the boys in good stead as future members of their community.

the key club sponsors car washes, "slave days, "and dances to raise money for the scholarship which they award. their attendance at kiwanis club meetings and key club conventions provides an opportunity to become acquainted with a wide variety of vocations and to know better the future citizens with whom they will be working and living.

of the future

the prospect of teaching seems much more real when you're actually conducting a reading group or leading a sixth grade geography class.

the girls of the future teachers of america have the opportunity to do just that in their observing program, when in the spring they spend a day at a local elementary or junior high school.

many stimulating speakers have visited the regular meetings, and trips to harvard and bridgewater state college have highlighted the year.

or is it lights! camera! action!? well, we, the cast, are not professionals, but we did our best and enjoyed every minute of working with mr. longridge, our director.

the play, "ask any girl," was the comical story of a young career girl, meg, who left home bound for new york city to seek adventure and a husband . but made the mistake of registering at the madison avenue girls' hotel, where a man was a rare sight. meg was employed by an advertising firm run by miles daughton, who was the all-business-no-pleasure type, and his younger brother evan, all-pleasure-no-business, which resulted in a very comical "love(?)" triangle.

joanie sewall, our student director, can assure you that this was the most successful play ever to be produced at weymouth high school; but if you don't believe her, "ask any girl !"

keep your eye on the ball!

the weymouth high school golf team teed off from the first tee at the south shore country club in hingham. "fore!" came the cry and "splash!" into the pond went the ball. what a favorable beginning for one of weymouth high school's newest sports! fortunately, however, interest in this sport was by no means as dampened as the aforesaid golf ball, and the boys looked forward to a great spring season.

the team did very well in the 1960 season, which was their first, defeating cohasset and tying two other matches. through graduation the team has lost such good members as ed corrigan, john nichols, and don oppenheim; but with such outstanding players as jim greenhalgh, al ingham, and bill nealan and the addition of some new members, the golf team, coached by mr. fisher, enjoyed another successful season.

will it or won't it?

"i'm sure it landed here!"

"maybe i can blow it over."

raising a racket

reach for the sky!

weymouth strikes a lob! the ball ascends slowly into a high loop!

racket at an angle, paul macfawn is ready to hit for a "smash"! it's a high-bounce landing for this year's tennis team!

raising rackets for only its second year, the team is proud of the results of its games.

directed by mr. dempsey, the team is striving for new and better accomplishments at future matches.

take me out to the ball game!

from their visored caps to their spiked shoes, weymouth high's baseball players have proven themselves every inch an asset to their school. thanks to coach leo hayes, the boys have developed a well co-ordinated, aggressive team, a worthy opponent for any adversary.

brian dunbar, as expected, was one of weymouth's stars, but the whole team also has a right to be proud of itself.

so we've finished high school and it's graduation day the sunshine sends its promise that'twill light the future way we're fitted out with dignity in weymouth cap and gown that tasselled hat means more to us than any royal crown our nerves grow tense we eagerly await our moment's fame then proudly we step forward as the speaker calls our name the trail's end still lies ahead but briefly we can rest to count our hopes and memories we wonder which are best poem by beverly allen '61

as we look back upon our lives at this important time, we come to realize the years of dedicated service that our teachers have rendered us. we remember their helpful ways, their understanding smiles, their willing hearts. throughout the years of their unselfish giving of themselves, they have looked forward to the day of retirement with the knowledge of having completed a job well done. it is our honor and pleasure to have escorting us from the halls of weymouth high . . . miss lyons and mr. nelson.

dear lord,

as we humbly stand before thee, dressed in our caps and gowns, we look back with gratitude and forward with much expectation.

upon this day, we turn toward thee for guidance so that we shall not go astray in the particular path each will take.

let us be ever mindful of our greatest inheritance, freedom, and hold it up as a beacon to the troubled peoples of the world, to instill in them the hope and faith that someday they too will enjoy this, the greatest blessing of all.

within these ivy-covered walls of weymouth high school beats the heartthrob of america's tomorrow. make us worthy of this great land, father! and, as the ivy clings to the staunch brick walls, let us so cling to the ideals this institution has bestowed upon us.

we cannot stop the passing of time, nor can we help losing some contact with the steadfast friends we have made here; but with thy grace, we shall always cherish the many happy hours shared with the teachers, who, with thy help, molded our early years and gave us the means of acquiring and diffusing useful knowledge.

as our cross of gray boldly weathers stormy and sunny days, give us the strength to face each day with the trials and joys which come. as we go from here today, stay by our side, guide us through to the fulfillment of our goals, and help us become the citizens this school prepared us to be.

amen

we have reached the end of our journey through the past, and it is time to look to the future. to that future we commend the sophomores and juniors who have shared this year with us.

with sincere gratitude we acknowledge the wonderful spirit and enthusiasm evident among the undergraduates. this year their willingness to assist in all our class endeavors from yearbook to class play has won them school-wide applause.

when each pupil in a homeroom is willing to do his part for the senior class by purchasing a campus, we have no cause for concern about their future as a class. room 304 did just that! to such spirit as this we bequeath the benefit of all our errors, the satisfaction of projects well done, and sincere faith in their destiny as seniors, knowing full well that they are qualified to carry out the traditions of devotion and accomplishment synonymous with weymouth high. ave atque vale!
